"What was most important in our planning process was doing things our way and not getting wrapped up in all of the superficial details and maintaining a very laid back and enjoyable atmosphere," recalls Becca Williams of her intimate wedding to Adam Williams. "No theme, favors or special foods. We were interested in a beautiful outdoor location in a place that was meaningful to us - Taos. The sustainable philosophy of the resort strongly appealed to us as well."

Becca walked on her father's arm to the Sacred Circle in a simple tulle gown by Jessica McClintock to Adam, dressed in an elegant black suit. Paul and Grace Jones played Native American flutes, and their 12 family members and friends watched as they exchanged vows...their way. "Our guests thought it was beautiful." They celebrated over dinner with everyone in the Wine Room.

Some favorite memories are "the delicious meals, beautiful décor and enjoying the Japanese soaking tub on our patio. The best part was doing things our way and not being held to traditional rules. We envision ourselves returning for future anniversaries."
